HutchiBoye - 50 Years of Music!

HutchiBoye's style of music originates from 50 years as a professional bassist, drummer, guitarist, keyboardist, sound and recording engineer, song writer and producer. He began his musical journey as a youngster when he won a ukulele at an Easter egg hunt at Church. He taught himself how to use that ukulele as bass guitar! Immediately he began composing songs by using a foot locker, as a drum and two cassette players with a microphone, as his recording studio. Impressed by his son, his father put a real bass in his hands. Because it was too big for his small hands, HutchiBoye laid that bass guitar in his lap and played it with his thumbs. Unable to afford a bass amplifier, he made one using a cassette player. That's right, he plugged a speaker in the headphone jack, and history was made. As his skill developed he longed for a bigger sound, around that time, someone gave him a record player, a real, old school one. Genius that he is, HutchiBoye pulled the wires off the needle and taped a guitar cord to them, and then plugged in the bass. He connected a big speaker to the speaker wires and jammed like there was no tomorrow.

HutchiBoye loves all styles of music even if it's in a different language. He believes music in any language transcends all, because a hook is a hook, a beat is a beat, and a catchy melody is a catchy melody. He also loves to use all kinds of sounds and instruments from around the world in his music. Thanks to technology, sound is now digitized which gives artists the ability to create using any sound imaginable. You no longer need a live band to create music that is relevant to vast listeners, nor do you need a music degree to be legitimate, and you don't need a record label for your music to be heard.

HutchiBoye is well aware that the album release is being replaced by single song releases; the buffet is replaced by the small plate. You buy only the songs you want, and each song has its own style and feel, and stands on its own.

So, brace yourself for the culmination of 50 years of experience from an inventive musician, producer, engineer, and entrepreneur. It's finally time for the world to see and hear HutchiBoye. Please enjoy this Soul Reggae release with a Jazzy twist:
